Dr John Doe

Department of History, University of Northbridge · john.doe@example.org · ORCID 0000-0000-0000-0000

Current position

Teaching Fellow in Modern History, University of Northbridge, October 2025 – August 2027.

Education

PhD in History, University of Northbridge, awarded January 2025.
Thesis: Strikes, Soup Kitchens and Solidarity: Working-Class Women and the Politics of Relief in Industrial Britain, 1880–1926. Funded by a doctoral training partnership studentship.

MA in Modern History, University of Northbridge, 2020 (distinction).

BA (Hons) in History, Eastbury University, 2019 (first class).

Research interests

Modern British and European social history; labour history and trade unions; women's and gender history; charity, poor relief and the origins of the welfare state; Irish migration to Britain; oral history; digital history and GIS.

Publications

- Doe, J. (2025). “Relief committees and the 1926 lockout in the northern coalfields.” Labour and Society Review 41(2): 115–138.
- Doe, J. (2024). “‘We fed the strike’: women, soup kitchens and community politics, 1880–1914.” Journal of Social History Studies 58(3): 402–426.
- Doe, J. (2025). “Mapping the poor law: GIS and relief records in an industrial town.” In A. Example (ed.), Digital Approaches to Social History. Northbridge University Press, 77–98.
- Book proposal under review: Feeding the Strike: Women and Relief in Industrial Britain.

Grants and awards

- Doctoral studentship, 2020–2024.
- Royal Example Society travel grant for archival research in Dublin, 2022.
- Best postgraduate paper prize, Social History Example Conference, 2023.

Teaching

- Module convenor, “Protest and Reform, 1815–1914” (second year, 2025–).
- Lectures and seminars on modern Britain and Europe since 1800 (2021–).
- Associate Fellow of a higher-education teaching body, 2023.

Skills

Archival research in trade-union, local-government and newspaper collections; oral history interviewing and ethics; quantitative analysis of historical records; GIS (QGIS); Python and R (basic).
Languages: English (native), French (C1), German (B1 reading).

Conference papers (selected)

- “Soup, solidarity and the state”, European Social History Example Conference, 2024.
- “Irish women and relief networks in northern England”, Example Labour History Society, 2023.

This is a fictional CV used as an example for jobHunter.